EDITOR, VOICE MAGAZINE

Dear Pastors and Friends in Christ,

I write to introduce you to the ministry of Bibles International and to encourage our IFCA churches to consider partnering with them in the vital work of Bible translation.

Bibles International exists to provide accurate, faithful translations of God's Word to people around the world who do not yet have Scripture in their own language, and to see those translations used through literacy, printing, distribution, and training in the churches that receive them. This is foundational ministry—every church-planting effort, every discipleship program, and every gospel witness in the field depends on believers having access to a trustworthy translation of the Bible in their own tongue.

I am writing on behalf of Subash and Sandra Muthyala, who are BMM Missions appointees currently raising prayer and financial support to serve with Bibles International. Subash and Sandra have a long history of involvement in IFCA-related ministries, including their time at Byron Center Bible Church under the ministry of Dr. Rich McCarrell and their friendship with Dr. Les Lofquist.

I have come to know them personally over the past few years, and what I have observed of their character and walk with the Lord speaks well of their readiness for the work God has called them to. They have a settled sense of calling to serve with Bibles International, and I have appreciated hearing them describe the burden they carry for the accurate translation and faithful distribution of God's Word around the world. In my interactions with them, I have found them sincere, teachable, and faithful in their involvement with our fellowship.

I am glad to commend Subash and Sandra Muthyala for ministry with Bibles International, and I am glad to partner with them in prayer as they raise the support the Lord provides for this next step of ministry. It is my hope that our churches would be willing to open their doors to Subash and Sandra to share this ministry with your congregation. A missions Sunday presentation, a meeting with your leadership, or simply an opportunity to speak with your people about the need for Bible translation would go a long way toward building the prayer and financial partnerships this work requires.

If your church would be willing to host Subash and Sandra or would simply like more information about the ministry of Bibles International, please do not hesitate to reach out to them directly or to my office, and we will gladly help make the connection.

Thank you for your consideration and for your continued partnership in the work of the gospel.

In His service,

Richard Bargas
